Investment Strategy

Our equity investment fund aims to grow its investors' capital at a higher rate than the stock markets over the long term. We invest in the best European multinational companies, with which to take advantage of global growth and development.

Narval Europe bets on companies with a deep-rooted culture of innovation so that, as long-term investors, we place our capital in companies capable of creating their own future and thus obtain returns higher than the indexes with maximum risk containment.

Monthly comment

February was dominated by a steady tug-of-war between macro data and political risk, with investors moving in step with inflation, trade policy, and a worsening geopolitical backdrop. In Europe, the ECB kept rates unchanged and reiterated a cautious approach, while the market continued to monitor inflation dynamics closely. In the United States, inflation showed signs of easing at the start of the year (2.4% year-on-year), but market sensitivity to any price surprises and tariff-related headlines remained elevated. Against this backdrop, European equities ended the month on a strong note (STOXX 600 +3.74%), while Wall Street saw greater dispersion and finished the month moderately lower, with the S&P 500 down 0.9% and the Nasdaq down 3.4%. February ended with a military escalation involving the United States, Israel and Iran, raising the risk of energy disruptions and pointing to a more volatile start to March. In this context, the Class A portfolio posted a return of +0.72% in February. From a positioning standpoint, we increased exposure to payments-focused financials, defence, and real estate. At the same time, we partially trimmed utilities and industrials after their strong performance, taking profits. We maintain a lower beta and reduced exposure, remaining cautious given the current market environment.

The risk indicator assumes that you will hold the product for 3 years. The actual risk may vary considerably in the event of an early exit, so you may get less money back. The summary risk indicator is a guide to the level of risk of this product compared to other products. It shows how likely it is that the product will lose money because of market developments or because we are unable to pay you. We have classified this product in risk class 2, on a scale of 1 to 7, where 2 corresponds to the low risk class. This assessment rates the possibility of suffering losses in future returns as low and the probability of a bad market situation influencing our ability to pay you as very unlikely.
